

CORPUS INSCRIPTIONUM IRANICARUM

CORPUS INSCRIPTIONUM IRANICARUM (C.I.I.), an association devoted to the collection and publication of Iranian inscriptions and documents. The C.I.I. was founded in 1955, in response to a resolution of the 22nd International Congress of Orientalists at Cambridge, with W. B. Henning as its first chairman and Sayyed Ḥasan Taqīzāda (Taqizadeh) as its honorary president. The first secretary was Mary Boyce. The activities of the C.I.I. are directed by a council and an international committee of up to forty members; it is registered in England as an educational charity and as a nonprofit company limited by guarantee. The funds to subsidize its publication program are derived in part from grants by such national and international bodies as the British Academy and the International Academic Union, in part from capital sums contributed by the Persian government and the other original sponsors (listed in the frontmatter of each C.I.I. publication).

The aim of the C.I.I. is to publish a comprehensive and permanent record of Iranian inscriptions, defined in the broadest sense. The plan of the work includes inscriptions and documents (as opposed to literary texts) in Iranian languages, whether actually found in Iran or elsewhere, and those in non-Iranian languages if they were found in Iran or are versions of texts also occurring in an Iranian language. In order to set manageable limits to the project, Persian inscriptions later than the early Safavid period are excluded, but a supplementary series provides for the inclusion of relevant works, like glossaries and grammars, that fall outside the scope of the main series. The first publications of the Corpus were portfolios of facsimiles printed on loose plates; more recent volumes, whether consisting of plates, of texts with translation and commentary, or of both together, have usually been bound in book form. During the years 1955-92 a total of thirty-three volumes have been published in the following categories: inscriptions of ancient Iran (4 vols.), inscriptions of the Seleucid and Parthian periods and of eastern Iran and Central Asia (15 vols.), Pahlavi inscriptions (8 vols.), Persian inscriptions down to the early Safavid period (4 vols.), and the supplementary series (2 vols.). The following is a complete list in chronological order (all but one published in London): The inscription of Sar-Mašhad, ed. W. B. Henning, 1955; The Inscription of Naqš-i Rostam, ed. W. B.
