

GORZEVĀN

GORZEVĀN (thus in the Ḥodud al-ʿālam; Yaʿqubi, Qorzomān; Ebn Ḥawqal and Yāqut, Jorzovān; Moqaddasi, Jorzovān and Korzovān), a town in the medieval Islamic region of Guzgān (q.v.) in northern Afghanistan. It lay in the district of the headwaters of the Fāryāb and Andkuy rivers, still in modern Afghanistan called Darzāb wa Gorzevān (Ḥodud al-ʿālam, tr, Minorsky, comm. p. 335). It was the summer residence (qaṣaba) of the local princes of the Farighunid family (see āl-e farègúuún), whose winter residence was at Anbār or Anbīr (q.v.). The geographers describe it as populous and flourishing. Under the K̄vārazmšāhs, it was a mint town (Zambaur, p. 97). The present ruins at Qalʿa-ye Wāli, to the south of Bālā Morgāb, may mark its site (Yate, pp. 157, 194-96, 211).

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Ebn Ḥawqal, p. 443; tr. Kramers and Wiet, p. 428.

Gazetteer of Afghanistan IV, pp. 193-94, 230-31.

Hodud al-‘ālam, ed. Sotuda, pp. 30, 97; tr. Minorsky, pp. xxxvii-viii, 64, 107.

Le Strange, Lands, p. 424.

Ya‘qubi, Boldān, p. 287; tr. Wiet, p. 100.

Yāqut, Boldān (ed. Beirut) II, p. 125.

C. C. Yate, Northern Afghanistan, London, 1888.

Eduard von Zambaur, Die Münprägungen des Islam, Wiesbaden, 1968.